DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1, 3-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Gillins et al (6223510).

Gillins discloses and shows as now amended:

In col. 4, ln 47-49, the Teflon (or any other design choice material) provides a flexible barrier between an object & the trimmer (such as blade);

Art Unit: 3671

The trim surface especially as considered around the actual trimming element (blade), thus the bend section being spaced apart from the trim surface.

As applied to claim(s) 5-9, in view of the structure disclosed/taught by Gillins et al, the method of operating/using the device is inherent since it is the normal and logical manner in which the device is used.

3. Claims 1, 3-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Phillips et al (2488140).

Phillips discloses as now amended a rubber bumper (ref 43) having curved/bend section for protecting the cutting element (trimmer) (col. 1, ln 19-22).

The trim surface especially as considered around the actual trimming element (blade), thus the bend section being spaced apart from the trim surface.

As applied to claim(s) 5-9, in view of the structure disclosed/taught by Phillips et al, the method of operating/using the device is inherent since it is the normal and logical manner in which the device is used.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claim 3 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Phillips OR Gillins, in view of Read (1342393).

Phillips OR Gillins does not show an aperture (for mounting the bumper).

Read discloses at ref 27, that aperture on a bumper is well known.

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide the bumper of Phillips OR Gillins with the teachings of Read apertured bumper, in order to more easily remove or install the bumper. It is noted that the shape of bumper, the material choice for the bumper are all well known and within the skill in the art at the time the invention was made.

Response to Arguments

6. Applicant's arguments filed 10/26/2004 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

In re applicant's argument of claim 1:

The last 2 lines, "moves the bend section towards the trim surface" as the applicant argues that it is require by claim 1, the examiner reviewed claim 1 and this recitation was not found.

In the newly amended portion of the claim: the trim surface especially as considered around the actual trimming element (blade), thus the bend section being spaced apart from the trim surface.

Furthermore, the "positioned adjacent to and spaced apart from" is also not found in claim 1. Therefore Philips, in addition to Gillins, also meets the claimed structural limitations of the claim as now amended.

Conclusion
